MKTG 550.1BB - Online course, no campus visits required.
This course will introduce students to the latest concepts and techniques used in online marketing communications through new media channels made available through the Internet and wireless mobile devices. The course will explore such topics as online advertising, search engine optimization, Web analytics, mobile messaging, and the use of social media networks such as Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn for business marketing communications. In addition, students will learn how and where to apply online marketing communications tools in real-world business situations through case studies of “best practices” currently being used commercially. This course is for NON-business administration majors and minors, and will be taught entirely online using Blackboard systems tools. Online course, no campus visits required. Permission required: contact Paul College Undergraduate Programs office to obtain approval.

Prereq: MKTG 550, Survey of Marketing, or equivalent.
