FOR RELEASE
 July 23, 2008

DURHAM, NH – Former Governor Jeanne Shaheen has seen her once comfortable lead over incumbent Republican John Sununu shrink in recent months in the race for the U.S. Senate in New Hampshire. In the 1st District, incumbent Carol Shea-Porter trails former Congressman Jeb Bradley but leads the other Republican challenger, John Stephen. Second District incumbent Paul Hodes continues to hold comfortable leads over his Republican challengers. But it is still early in the campaign and almost three-quarters of voters say they are still trying to decide who to vote for.

These findings are based on the latest Granite State Poll,* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred (519) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between July 11 and July 20, 2008. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/-4.3 percent. Included was a subsample of 475 likely November voters (margin of sampling error, +/- 4.5%). Two hundred thirty-five (235) likely voters lived in New Hampshire's 1st Congressional District (margin of sampling error = +/-6.4%) and 240 lived in the 2nd District (margin of sampling error = +/-6.3%).

NH Senate Trial Heat

In a rematch of their 2002 race, Republican Senator John Sununu and former Democratic Governor Jeanne Shaheen are in what is shaping up to be a close race for U.S. Senate. Sununu has trailed Shaheen significantly over the past year but he has narrowed the gap in recent months. Shaheen currently receives 46% of the vote with 42% going to Sununu, 1% for some other candidate and 10% are undecided. Sununu had Shaheen trailed by 17% in February and 12% in April.

Shaheen runs strongest among Democrats, liberals, voters with high levels of education, young voters, and non-religious voters. Sununu runs strongest among Republicans, conservatives, older voters, and voters with lower levels of education.

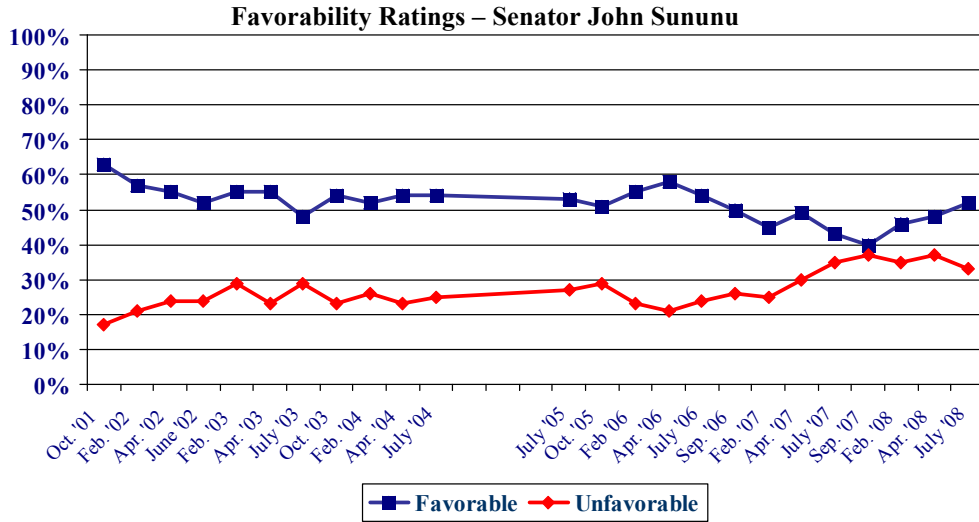

This race is very much up in the air as 22% of likely voters say they have definitely decided who they will vote for, 6% are leaning toward one of the candidates, and 72% are still trying to decide who to support.

Hodes leads Clegg by a 44% to 25% margin, with 3% preferring some other candidate and 29% undecided. Hodes leads Horn by a 43% to 23% margin, with 2% favoring some other candidate and 32% undecided.

Granite State Poll Methodology

Five hundred (519) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between July 11 and July 20, 2008. The sample was selected at random from all household in New Hampshire with a land-line telephone and a respondent was selected at random within each household. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/-4.3 percent. Included was a subsample of 475 likely November voters (margin of sampling error, +/- 4.5%). Two hundred thirty-five (235) likely voters lived in New Hampshire's 1st Congressional District (margin of sampling error = +/-6.4%) and 240 lived in the 2nd District (margin of sampling error = +/-6.3%). Results reported for other subgroups have potential for somewhat larger variation than those for the entire population.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
