PARTNERS IN HEALTH

Social Innovation and Ebola: Addressing Global Health Inequities

We are delighted to welcome Dr. Sheila Davis to UNH. Dr. Davis will discuss the unique model created by Partners in Health (PIH) to bring innovations in healthcare to the world's most remote people. PIH's deep collaborations with local governments, NGOs, private business, and leading medical and academic institutions have led to sustainable, highly effective and scalable solutions since 1987. As an example of the effectiveness of their model in action, Dr. Davis will also talk about PIH's response to the global Ebola epidemic, Ebola as symptom of a non-functioning global health system, and their future plans for social innovation in healthcare.

Dr. Sheila Davis, DNP, ANP-BC, FAAN, has been a nursing leader in the field of HIV/AIDS since its emergence in the mid-1980s. She entered the global health arena in 1999 when she began working for Partners' AIDS Research Center as part of Massachusetts General Hospital. Dr. Davis also co-founded a small NGO that worked in South Africa on health projects, including a rural village nurse clinic. Davis received her BSN from Northeastern University and her Masters in Nursing (as well as Doctorate in Nursing Practice) from the MGH Institute of Health Professions. She is currently a RWJ Executive Nurse Fellow and currently serves as the Chief of the Ebola Response and Chief Nursing Officer at Partners In Health, where she has led the Ebola response efforts in West Africa since September 2014.
