LIFE HAPPENS ON CAMPUS. WHY LIVE ANYWHERE ELSE?
Cinco de Mayo is a celebration of the Mexican militia’s upset victory over the French expeditionary forces of Napoleon III at the Battle of Puebla, which took place on May 5, 1862.

English, Spanish, and French troops invaded Mexico after it had declared a temporary moratorium on foreign debt repayment. The English and Spanish withdrew, but the French fought to establish a monarchy in Mexico.

Under Gen. Ignacio Zaragoza, a poorly equipped and vastly outnumbered Mexican army defeated French troops. The French were driven out five years later.

In Mexico, Cinco de Mayo is called "El Día de la Batalla de Puebla" which means "The Day of the Battle of Puebla".

Cinco de Mayo is celebrated in the U.S., Mexico, and to a lesser extent parts of Canada, the Caribbean, Australia, London, New Zealand, Tokyo, and Paris.

In Mexico—and especially in the town of Puebla—it is celebrated with parades, speeches, and sometimes reenactments.

In the U.S., it is celebrated with Mexican food, music, dancing, and culture—such as balle folklórico and mariachi demonstrations—as well as parades and festivals.
