

GSS Newsletter

December 2017

A BRIEF UPDATE

November came and went faster than cider donut samples in the grocery store bakery, didn't it? Welcome to the year's final update! Amid the late-semester crush of exams and essays, we made time for a dinner/forum/ice-cream-social to discuss what it takes to create a healthy and diverse community, and we also hosted a lunch with unit directors to discuss student fees. In fact, we're drafting a letter right now about the GSS votes on the student fee increases slated for next academic year (tallies available in the minutes from Nov. 28, 2017). And we're keeping our focus on the Forest Park/Durham tuition issue, which has been on GSS agendas since August, and is now in the news. Read reports at The New Hampshire, The Union Leader, and NHPR.

LOOKING AHEAD

First Thursday

We hope to see you for some well-earned socializing & holiday season cheer at the Thirsty Moose (Dover), Thurs. Dec. 7: 7:00-9:00pm.

UNHInnovation

Next semester, GSS will host Associate Vice Provost of Innovation & New Ventures and UNHInnovation Managing Director Marc Sedam. Among our topics of discussion will be plans for a research park. (We had to reschedule the Nov. 14 visit.)

UNH Police Chief

We will also host UNH Police Chief Paul Dean for a discussion of campus safety, winter weather curtailments (sign up for alerts!), what kinds of things @UNH_Police tweets about, and other important issues of security.

GSS President's Office Hours

Friday, Dec. 8

Miss our general sessions? GSS President Jovana Milosavljevic-Ardeljan will be available on first Fridays each month of the semester, from 1-2pm, in the GSS Office at MUB 119. You can also contact your Senator; follow this link to find out who's who and how to reach them. We're here to help!
