There are several upcoming events that were brought up, including an event on March 24th about indigenous populations and violence, a film and panel discussion on veterans with disabilities on March 22nd, and an anti-violence walk on April 14th. Additionally, the women's commission annual luncheon "Removing Barriers to the Vote" will take place on March 30. Each year awards are presented to UNH students, staff, and faculty for their outstanding contribution to promoting equity, advancing the status of women and serving as role models for other women. The women's commission needs more nominations and asks the GSS members to nominate fellow students, advisors, or professors (https://nominations.unh.edu/app.cfm?id=17). Finally, SHARPP is asking student organizations (including the GSS) to sponsor and attend their anti-violence walk and rally on April 14th. There is no fee associated with sponsorship. I will have more information in the next few days about what sponsorship entails.
